The story of the film takes place in the border area between the Czech Republic and Germany, in a small town in the middle of forests of the Ore Mountains. The main character is an elderly German wind turbine engineer Julius Schmitke. And also the Ore Mountains, which, like Schmitke, were almost completely empty and destroyed, but are now being regenerated and life is slowly but surely returning to them. Featuring intertwining comedy exaggeration and mysterious atmosphere, the film was created as a Czech-German co-production.
